PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Leidos is the primary training delivery services contractor for the Center for Domestic Preparedness (CDP) and has served this role since the CDP's inception in 1998. Over the past 21 years, Leidos has been committed to helping the CDP provide advanced all-hazards and mass casualty training to emergency responders. Leidos provides resident (on campus) and non-resident (mobile) training. For the non-resident training programs, Leidos coordinates the deployment of an instructor cadre, logistical/equipment support, and necessary safety personnel to local jurisdictions across the country.

In support of both training and exercise delivery, Leidos provides logistics support that includes maintaining over 4,000 non-expendable equipment line items and over 1,000 types of consumable products, fabrication of training aides, and transportation of equipment. Additionally, Leidos provides role player and simulations support to create an enhanced, immersive experiential training environment, and subject matter experts in support of curriculum and exercise design.

The Leidos-CDP instructor cadre are real-world emergency managers, law enforcement officers, HAZMAT first responders, and healthcare first receivers. Our instructors, small business teaming partners, and management staff provide proactive innovation in responding to emerging threats for local, state, tribal, and territorial training and exercise preparedness requirements.
