

Daphne Davis

DIRECTOR, DELIVERY OPERATIONS

Daphne Davis is Director of Delivery Operations for Leidos Europe, prime contractor to the Ministry of Defence (MOD) for the Logistics, Commodities and Services Transformation (LCST) Programme.

Daphne was a member of the Leidos bid team that in 2015, was awarded the 13-year LCST contract by the MOD. Initially assuming the role of Head of Management Information after the successful bid, her contribution to the business was rewarded with both the Leidos CEO's and Rising Star awards, recognition of her achievements in the global Fortune 500 listed company.

After promotion to the role of Associate Director of Transformation in 2018, Daphne led a major programme to transform business processes. She successfully delivered alignment of processes across various business functions including Commodity Support Services, Storage, Distribution and Freight and Support Chain Integration, with the deployment of the new IT systems.

Daphne gained promotion to her current role in 2019, assuming responsibility for Operations, Customer Relationship Management and Performance as well as leading Project Management activities.

Daphne's career in Programme Management and Logistics has spanned over 13 years on both sides of the Atlantic. Before pursuing a career at Leidos, Daphne enjoyed successful roles in the commercial sector and US Military. She previously worked for the US Army and Marine Corps on high-profile supply-chain logistics programmes.

A graduate in Foreign Affairs from the University of Virginia, Daphne is also a certified Project Management Professional (PMP®).

Outside the office, Daphne enjoys travelling to explore new cultures and places and spending time with family, friends and her dog.
